STORYBOARD: Anthony Clark

Anthony is a proud member of the USC maintenance staff. He performs his duties faithfully for long hours each week.

Unfortunately, Anthony rarely has time to explore new dining options due to his schedule, and for months has ate Chik-fil-a for dinner every night.

One day however, a coworker tells him about an app created by genius undergrads that gives info for all the eating establishments near campus.

Anthony decides to try Community table, he orders a cheesesteak, and is astonished that the app even verifies the food is safe for his peanut allergy.

Amazed by how good the Philly cheesesteak is, Anthony orders from different places every night using the app to find menu items he likes. As his diet diversifies, he feels healthier and happier than ever before.

As the weeks pass, Anthony finds many new places, and begins to think about is options actively as he works. He often wonders where he would be without the app, probably eating

Chik-fil.

Luke- Hugh J'Loner

Hugh spends most of his time in his room and very few things can drag him away from it. With the inconvenience of having to wear a mask anywhere but his room, he only leaves when he thinks its really necessary.

Hugh finds an app that claims to help college students find the best food options for them without having to explore campus and ask who accepts meal swipes. Skeptical, he downloads the app.

To his surprise, the app lets him sort by any criteria imaginable and shows the restaurants on a map that fit as well as his own location.

He can even click on a restaurant's markers to pull up a list of what items on the menu fit the more advanced criteria.

After looking through the app for a few minutes, he decides that using a meal swipe for some tacos and getting a chickfila milkshake would be worth leaving his room, but only if its quick.

Luckily, Hugh places his order through the app so he his food is ready for him right when he arrives at russell. He grabs his tacos and milkshake and heads back to his dorm before you could say “How convenient!”

Madison- Amanda Smith

Amanda is constantly on the run between work, and school. She is bombarded by the workload of both of her life styles with not wanting to get behind in school work or do something wrong at work.

Because of this it causes Amanda to not have time to read menus at places to find vegan options for her diet and thus she results to a lot of salads and simple food without much substance. And not finding new places to eat at.

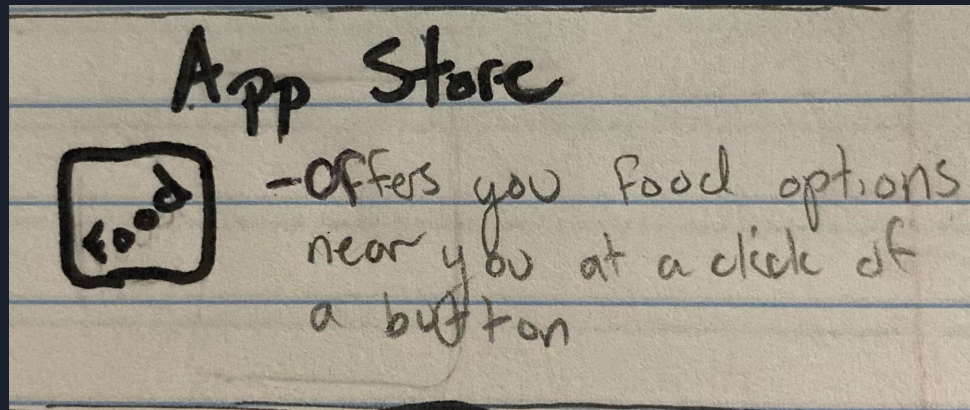

With not being able to find food options quickly and easily it frustrates Amanda as she needs to buy groceries and cook for herself but she doesn't even have the time for that kind of simple stuff between working and doing school work.

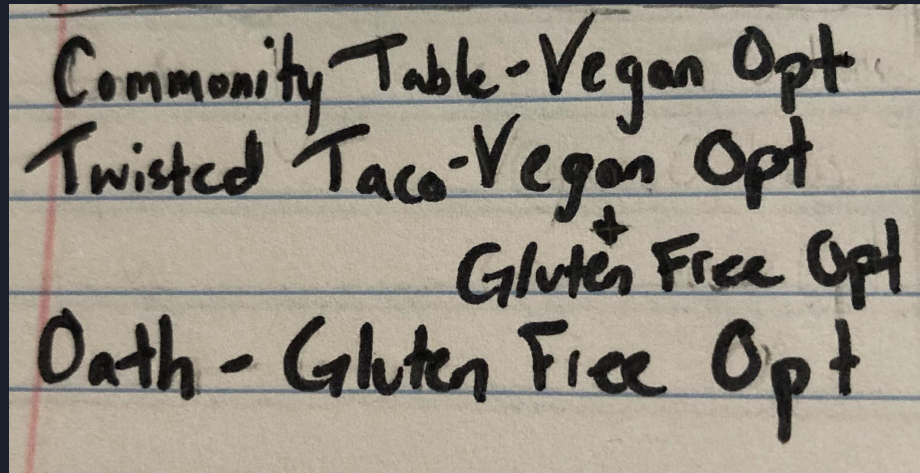

However being a techy student like herself she decides to look into any app that may help her out with her problems. Something that would make her live easier instead of having to juggle food problems with everything else she has. She discovers an app that offers her the ability to find food options that are near her.

Amanda downloads the app and learns that it not only gives her the ability to see the different places around her but also the hours of operation and even better gives specific offers from being vegan friendly and other dietary restrictions. She is now able to quickly search food places and look into vegan options without resorting strictly to salads.

Community Table - Vegan Opt
Twisted Taco - Vegan Opt
Gluten Free Opt
Oath - Gluten Free Opt

She now has the ability to try new food options quickly without stressing about being late to a class or work. She is able to order before hand and get the food without waiting for hours and thus is now able to venture into new food options. Things like a black bean burger from Community and more she is now able to try. Amanda is thrilled and excited to try everything offered and recommend the app to her friends and more.
